"Please help up!" – SOS!

This is a phrase we hear at ELLET every day, coming from municipalities, local organisations and citizens that call us from all over Greece!

The phone rings all day long and sometimes at night, too:

- "We are calling from Kastoria, The old city is disappearing"
- Hydra: "Risk of unauthorised building"
- Patmos: "Construction of virgin beaches"
- Sifnos: "The NATURA area is under threat"
- Skyros: "150 wind turbines in a NATURA area"
- Chios: "We are surrounded by fish farms"
- Cephalonia..., Crete..., Macedonia..., Thrace...

We at ELLET are doing our best to cope. We carefully verify and suggest alternatives. We call for help from the media, legal experts, architects, planners and citizens. We intervene, recommend, and often break new ground with our well-documented proposals.

Please help us so that we can help!

Greek Paths of Culture

A programme of selection, sign posting and promotion of public footpaths in areas of particular environmental or cultural importance which:

- highlights a precious part of the cultural and natural heritage of Greece
- extends the tourist season
- involves municipal authorities, schools, cultural organisations, local producers
- creates jobs, for young people in particular
- promotes local produce
- makes people aware of the beauty of the landscape and the need to protect it
- though involving a relatively small initial investment, has a beneficial multiplier effect over time.

The Sustainable Greek School

Actively involving teachers, students, parents and local communities, the programme develops strategies for learning, culture and sustainable development.

The "Sustainable Greek School" Programme was approved by the Ministry of Education and involves 130 schools from all over Greece, which act based on gateways to Sustainability:

- Democracy - Participation
- Promoting Arts - Culture
- Building - Courtyard
- Energy saving
- Transpotation policy
- Saving resources
- Health Promotion
- From local to global

Seminars are organised, with the participation of hundreds of educationalists from every level: teachers, and school principals, school counselors and university scientific partners.
